Mission statement

The European Journal of Social Law (EJSL) is an academic peer-reviewed journal dedicated to the dissemination of internationally excellent research on developments, trends and challenges in labour law and social security/welfare law at the European and international levels.

EJSL analyses the expanding field of social law at the European level in its complex and dynamic interconnections with general developments in the integration process and in the construction of the European polity. In particular, the journal's focus is on the impact of the market freedoms and other general principles and policies of the European Union on national and European social values and rights.

EJSL focuses both on the theoretical and constitutional dimensions of these developments and on the systematic analysis of legislation, case-law and new policy trends in European labour law and social security law.
