 - "Less card more value" Award. Special mention by the Minister for Public Administration and Innovation, Forum PA (Rome, 11 May 2011). The prize was awarded to the University of Catania for the dematerialization project of document flows. The implementation of the project, inspired by the Code of digital administration (Legislative Decree 82/2005), leveraging the use of telematic transmissions by means of e-mail, has made it possible to obtain a reduction in the costs incurred annually by the University for the payment of the internal mail sorting service between the various University structures (central administration areas, faculties, departments, research and service centers, etc.), located in different areas of the provincial territory and also outside the province, the speeding up of internal bureaucratic procedures, the reduction of delivery times (transmission times practically zero) and an overall rationalization of the communication procedures, including the use of Certified Electronic Mail (PEC).

 - "Best Practice Public Heritage 2011" Award, Forum PA (Rome, 12 May 2011). The award is intended to bring national attention to the best practices in terms of enhancing public assets and increasing their management efficiency; aims to gratify the most innovative experiences and projects, promoted and developed in Italy through partnerships between public bodies and private companies, for management and enhancement of real estate, urban and territorial, public property or public interest. The prize was awarded to the University of Catania for the design and installation of an integrated energy service system, divided into four initiatives: renegotiation of electricity supply contracts; rationalization of energy consumption; maintenance service of the 'electrical loop' plant assets; self-production of energy through the use of renewable sources. The intervention also includes the following actions: automation of air conditioning and lighting systems; efficiency of external lighting systems; monitoring of energy consumption by installing meters; centralized management of the plants. - 2011 e-Proc Award (Rome, 18.11.2011), promoted by the Ministry of Economy and Finance and by Consip SpA and reserved for those who, in 2010, achieved particularly significant results in the use of the telematic tools offered by "Acquistinrete" platform. The award was awarded to the University of Catania with the following motivation: "The Commission positively assessed the significant results of the reorganization of the purchasing processes implemented by the University following the continuous use of online purchasing tools. The establishment of the e-procurement office of the central administration has allowed the University to face the challenges of the digitization of negotiation procedures and to achieve excellent efficiency results in the shortest possible time. The University's path was also accompanied by a constant commitment to the dissemination of e-procurement, through the conduct of training courses, both to internal users and to P.A. and companies jointly, as well as a detailed analysis of the savings achieved, evaluated both as cost reduction and as savings over time".
